ANOTHER WARRANT

Bergendahl Must Face Charge in District of Columbia.

M. E. Bergendahl, the magazine solicitor who is in the Adams County jail on charges of false pretense, was served this morning with a warrant issued by the Police Court of the District of Columbia, charging him on five counts of false pretense. It is said that these five counts represent 120 subscriptions taken by him in the Capitol City and never turned in. After his case is disposed of here he will likely be taken to Washington for trial. It is said that Bergendahl took subscriptions from residents of ten different states, evidence to this effect being contained on the stubs in the handbag which was in his possession at the time of his arrest.

It is said that Bergendahl at some places registered under one name and then worked under another.

LIFT THE BAN

State, at Last, Frees District of Quarantine.

The state quarantine on York county since November 4, on account of the hoof and mouth disease, was lifted Monday, removing all restraint on movement of cattle, feed and fodder, excepting so far as the farms on which herds were condemned are concerned.

The federal quarantine remains on both York and Adams counties restricting interstate shipments. On the farms where herds were condemned no livestock, feed or fodder can be received or moved excepting on a permit. The inspectors will immediately be assigned by the state to other work and are already beginning to arrange for their departure.

SELIGMAN TELLS HIS SIDE OF CASE

Says that he was not Given Fair Hearing and that Part of Sermon Objected to was but a Small Portion of Discourse.

Rev. Will M. Seligman, who was on Sunday escorted from the grounds of the White Pine Sanatorium at Mont Alto, following his disregard of an order from Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, claims unfairness in the treatment accorded him and has presented in part his side of the case, which has aroused the greatest interest not only at the big State institution but in Gettysburg where Mr. Seligman has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Rev. Mr. Seligman insists that the hearing at which time the data was collected for Dr. Dixon by Drs. Johnson and Berry was very unjust, and that he himself was never called, that only a very small part of the sermon related to sexual vices and that all statements made were proved on investigation of Dr. Johnson on the strength of data given, also that he has not gone beyond reasonable bounds of truth or modesty.

No minister of that institution has done as much for the cheer and uplift, both by message and ministry, at every opportunity. Continuing he said:

"The revolting and unsubstantial accusation referred to was not an accusation. It was simply the statement of a report which arose from a demand by Drs. Johnson and Berry that I report all rumors to them. There is a difference between definite statement of a fact and the statement of a rumor.

"On sending their data to Dr. Dixon he wrote me a letter asking me not to speak on sexual vice again to the children and to retract other statements to Dr. Fred C. Johnson. In answer I wrote a letter stating that I would refrain from speaking of any sexual vices to children, and that I had made all explanations of the statements in question. Dr. Johnson approved of the answer assuring me it would wipe off the slate any differences between us, and advised me to mail same to Dr. Dixon which fact was substantiated by Dr. Berry Sunday in his office in the presence of the two state police who were escorting me around and off the ground.

"In compliance then with the request of Dr. Dixon to the satisfaction and approval of Dr. Johnson, the old charge cannot be accepted as a valid reason for the rash act of Dr. Dixon in closing the church to 200 or more worshippers and issuing an order to eject a minister from the grounds.

"The board therefore will be compelled to make thorough investigation."

FOR ROAD WORK

Want $10,000,000 for the State Highways.

Ten million dollars will be hunted this week by legislators who want to see the State provide for systematic road improvement. Chairman James F. Woodward, of the House appropriations committee, said that he hoped to be able to find that sum for roads. He said that he was not committed to twenty millions, although if it was possible he would be glad to vote such a sum for highways. But, he candidly said, he did not see that sum in sight.

DESERTION CHARGE

Officer Wilson Quick to Make Arrest.

Sarah Cromer, of Conewago township, on Monday laid information before Squire Harnish charging her husband George Cromer, with deserting her and their thirteen year old daughter on March 17th. County Detective Wilson went to Baltimore where he had no difficulty in finding the man and he brought Cromer back on the 10:09 train this morning.

BECKER—HILBERT

George Becker, of Hanover, and Miss Florence Hilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hilbert, of Littlestown, were married Sunday afternoon in St. Matthew's Lutheran parsonage, Hanover, by Rev. A. M. Heilmann.

SEMINARIAN ILL WITH DIPHTHERIA

Went to his Home in Littlestown Late Last Week. Has now Developed Disease in Serious Form. Not Likely to Fumigate.

Gould Wickey, a student at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, has developed a very severe case of diphtheria at his home in Littlestown where he is now under quarantine.

Mr. Wickey went home last Friday for the Easter recess and when he left Gettysburg was suffering from an affection of the throat which was diagnosed as tonsillitis. He consulted a physician in Littlestown after his arrival there and was instructed to stay in the house.

This advice was followed and on Sunday the case was pronounced diphtheria. It assumed a rather severe form and apprehension is felt for the young student's recovery. He has a large number of friends in Gettysburg, having been graduated from the college recently and taking an active interest in matters in town generally, including Sunday School and Christian Endeavor work in one or more of the churches.

No formal notification has been received by the authorities at the Seminary from the Littlestown board of health and it is not likely that fumigation will be deemed necessary, in view of the fact that the disease developed after he arrived in that town.

FOREST FIRES

Hundred Acres of Timberland are Burned over.

Pine Mountain was burned over Sunday night and with it about 100 acres of young timber.

This was the first time the mountain was burned over in a number of years and the conflagration consumed practically everything, destroying a big lot of valuable timber. The land is owned by Henry Good, William Houser, Samuel Pentz and others. State Forest Academy students and the men of the neighborhood fought the flames and got them under control during the night.

Two more fires broke out Monday morning. One was near the scene of Sunday night's conflagration. The other burned over about 10 acres belonging to David Mentzer, Adam Strausner and C. O. Bonner. Men of the neighborhood put out these fires.

The forest fires were caused by some people of that section, it is said, who either intentionally or carelessly started the conflagrations. One man of that vicinity says they may have been caused by boys boiling Easter eggs along the edge of the forest land.

NO BILLS FOR MONUMENTS HERE

Various Other Places in the State May Get Large Appropriations for Memorials. New Site for National Guards is Proposed.

Gettysburg fails to benefit by any of the bills presented in the State legislature for the erection of monuments. The bills now before the House include a bill providing $15,000 for the erection of a memorial to Molly Pitcher at Carlisle; one providing $10,000 for a monument to General Anthony Wayne, in Beaver county; another giving $3,000 for a statue of a continental soldier to be placed on the monument in Germantown commemorating the battle of that name; another for $3750 for a statue of Washington to be placed in the State Capitol.

Additional available land for National Guard encampments is provided in a bill presented by Senator Buckman. The site on which General George Washington assembled the Continental Army and started on the memorable trip across the ice-clogged Delaware river, on the night preceding the Battle of Trenton, which took place on December 25, 1776, will be marked with a monument if this bill becomes a law. The Buckman bill directs the purchase by the State of the site and adjoining grounds, the entire plot not to exceed 100 acres, and the establishment of a public park to be known as Washington Crossing Park.

This park is to be maintained as nearly as possible in its original condition as a military camp, and the bill authorizes the State to permit the use of the grounds for National Guard encampments. An appropriation of $25,000 is carried by the bill.

A bill to appropriate an amount sufficient to erect an appropriate statue to Major General George Gordon Meade, who "commanded the Army of the Potomac from Gettysburg to Appomattox, with an unbroken line of Union victories", has as its sponsor Senator Sproul, of Delaware county. In 1911 and 1912 the Legislature passed bills appropriating $30,000, evidently, the Sproul bill states, "intended simply for an equestrian statue of General Meade upon an isolated location somewhere in the nation's capital."

The Commission of Fine Arts of the District of Columbia since the $30,000 was appropriated has designated as a site for the proposed statue of General Meade a location within the lines of the Botanic Garden, and approximately within 200 feet of the monument now being erected to the memory of General U. S. Grant. This latter statue will cost when completed $250,000. The Sproul bill appropriates the sum of $50,000, or as much as may be necessary, to add to the $30,000 to obtain a statue worthy of the State.

ON SHORT TRIP

College Boys to Play and Sing in Two Towns.

The members of the combined musical clubs at college, who have been at their homes for the Easter recess, gathered at Harrisburg to-day to give two concerts, the one in that city this evening and the other at Lebanon on Wednesday. The students generally are returning for the re-opening of school Wednesday morning. Only two Gettysburg boys are on the clubs this year, Fred Faber and John Butt, both of whom are members of the mandolin and guitar club.

About April 15th The Celebrated CARTER CAR

will be demonstrated in this county: No other car in the county will come equipped as this car. People want to buy cars for pleasure, not to repair along the highway in heat or cold. This car with the gearless transmission and Dayton Airless Tire almost eliminates this trouble. The car and tire come recommended by users and not by agents and manufacturers. From 18,000 to 24,000 miles have been made on one set of Dayton Airless Tires, and one man has run car for 60,000 miles without being in the repair shop. I hold correspondence from the parties.

WON'T ADMIT EMBARGO RIGHT

Justification of Ban on Neutral Commerce Denied.

U. S. TO ASK REPARATION

The Allies Are Warned That Damages For Violation of International Law Is Expected.

Washington, April 6.—The United States government made public its note to Great Britain announcing that it "could not admit" either the right of the allies or their claims for justification in placing an embargo on all commercial intercourse between Germany and neutral countries.

"To admit it," says the communication, "would be to assume an attitude of unneutrality toward the present enemies of Great Britain, which would be obviously inconsistent with the solemn obligations of this government in the present circumstances, and for Great Britain to make such a claim would be for her to abandon and set at naught the principles for which she has consistently and earnestly contended in other times and circumstances."

The note reviews at length the legal phases of a blockade of belligerent territory and virtual blockade of neutral coasts. In conclusion the United States states its expectation that Great Britain, after having considered "the possibilities of serious interruption of American trade" under the "Order in Council," "will take the steps necessary to avoid them, and in the event that they should unhappily occur, will be prepared to make full reparation for every act, which under the rules of international law constitutes a violation of neutral rights."

The American communication interprets the circumstances under which Great Britain claims to be justified in adopting retaliatory measures toward her enemies as "merely a reason for certain extraordinary activities" by her naval forces "and not an excuse for or a prelude to any unlawful action."

"If the course of the present enemies of Great Britain," the note adds, "should prove to be in fact tainted by illegality and disregard of the principles of war sanctioned by enlightened nations, it cannot be supposed and this government does not for a moment suppose that his majesty's government would wish the same taint to attach to their own actions."

Ambassador Sharp at Paris was instructed to present a copy of the American note to Great Britain, to the French foreign office, with the statement that although the French admiralty decree had not been officially received in Washington, it was understood to be identical with the British Order in Council, and the American government therefore made similar reply.

BRITISH BATTLESHIP IS SUNK BY TURKS

Lord Nelson Riddled by Forts After Grounding.

Berlin, April 6.—A report received in Berlin from Athens says the British battleship Lord Nelson, stranded inside the Dardanelles straits, has been destroyed by the fire of the Turkish guns on shore.

This information was given out by the Overseas News agency.

The battleship Lord Nelson was a vessel of 16,75 tons and was the flagship of Vice Admiral Sir Cecil Burney. Her captain was John W. L. McClintock.

The battleship carried four 12-inch and ten 9.2-inch guns, together with twenty-four 12-pounders and two 3-pounders.

The Lord Nelson was the sister ship of the Agamemnon. These two were the last battleships of the pre-dreadnought class built by Great Britain. The Lord Nelson was of comparatively modern construction, having been provided for in the British naval estimates of 1905-6.

RUSSIANS DRIVE Foe BACK

Great Army Smashes Austrians in the Carpathians.

London, April 6.—With the Austrian army in retreat from Bessarabia and the Russian army debouching from Dukla Pass toward the heart of Hungary, it is the firm conviction of military observers in London that the Austrian campaign in the Carpathians and in Bukovina has collapsed.

The opinion is expressed in some quarters that the huge German reinforcements being sent to the Carpathian front may stiffen the Austrian resistance for a time, but it is believed no force available can stop the Russian avalanche.

The Austrian army opposing the Muscovite troops in the Beskid region began a retreat on Saturday.

The retreat from the Beskids, if it is as general as Petrograd advices indicate, opens a new gate to Hungary. The passes through this range have been contested desperately for more than three months through all the snows and bitter cold. The fighting the last week has been particularly stubborn, the official reports show.

JAPAN OUT OF EUROPE'S WAR

Authorities Kill Project of Sending Volunteer Army to Aid Allies.

Tokyo, April 6.—The project to send a Japanese volunteer army to Europe has been abandoned.

The plan was rejected by the military authorities because it would affect the strength of the army in war time, as the volunteers would come from the ranks of the reservists, and because the surplus arms of the army already had been sold to the allied powers and none would be available for the volunteers.

WILLARD KNOCKS OUT JOHNSON

Smash on the Jaw in 26th Round Wins.

NEGRO'S BLOWS LACKED STEAM

White Man Proves the Stronger of the Two and Succeeds in Wearing Out His Dusky Opponent.

Havana, April 6.—Jess Willard, the Kansas cowboy, is the new heavyweight champion pugilist of the world. He knocked out Jack Johnson, the holder, in the twenty-sixth round of their fight here, giving him the title.

A right smash to the jaw ended the battle.

The result came as a complete surprise to everyone. For twenty-four rounds the colored man had held the lead and landed blows almost at will, but he did not possess the sting of old, and Willard was able to take all the punishment without wincing.

Johnson had all his old assurance and confidence, but Willard meant business and was not bothered by the champion's tactics. In the twenty-fifth round the tide began to turn, but no one thought the end was near. In the twenty-sixth round Willard managed to send his right home to Johnson's stomach and the latter was in trouble. His knees sagged and he was almost down when Willard was on top of him like an enraged tiger.

Taking careful aim, the white man smashed once, twice on Johnson's jaw and down went the black man on his back.

Referee Welsh stood over him and counted the fatal seconds, while the big crowd cheered in ecstasy. Johnson made an effort to get to his feet, but "ten" was tolled out before he succeeded and there was a new world's champion.

The result showed that Johnson has gone back a lot and has lost his former stamina and punching ability. He hit Willard enough times to have beaten three men, but his blows were lacking in steam, and not once was he able to drive Willard off his feet.

Twice he had the challenger unsteady on his pins, but each time youth and perfect condition came to Willard's aid and enabled him to weather the storm. Then, when Johnson had begun to shoot his bolt, Willard gained more confidence and the end came quickly.

After the battle Johnson had little to say, except that a better and a younger man had taken the title. Willard was too happy to talk, but remarked that he was confident from the moment the fight started that he would be returned the winner.

In the challenger's corner were Tom Jones, Willard's manager; Tex O'Rourke, Jim Savage and Walter Monahan. Johnson was seconded by Tom Flanagan, George Munroe, McVey, Dave Mills and Bog Armstrong.

Johnson objected to a woman spectator in the press ringside stand, and she retired to an adjacent box. The negro was clad in bright blue trunks and no belt. Willard wore dark blue trunks and an American flag as a belt.

Johnson receives $30,000 for the fight and Willard gets a percentage of the net gate receipts.

SLAYER STABBED TO DEATH

Police Believe "Vendetta" Is Responsible For Murder.

Johnstown, Pa., April 6.—The body of Giuseppe Perry, who was being pursued by the police on suspicion of having killed Frank Perry, of this city, Saturday, was found pierced by a score of stiletto wounds at the mouth of a mine east of the city.

The police are seeking a clue to the murders, several evidently having been concerned in the vendetta. The murders are the latest of a long series which have occurred in the Italian colony of Johnstown within the past five years, and all of which have baffled the police.

The Italians refuse to talk, professing ignorance, but it is claimed that members of the colony know who is responsible for the killings, but are in terror of the vendetta.

BULGAR GUERRILLAS RAID GREEK BORDER

Band Driven Out of Serbia Starts New Drive.

London, April 6.—The roving band of Bulgars, driven out of Serbia after its sudden raid, has penetrated into Greece at three points, according to Salonika dispatches.

The English press sees in this episode the possibility of developments which may mean a flare-up in the smoldering Balkan situation.

Advices reaching London by way of Rome, however, assert that Bulgaria has agreed to give full satisfaction to both Greece and Serbia.

If this is true, probably the only sequel to the episode will be to draw from Bulgaria a definite statement as to the policy she purposes to pursue. All the Balkan nations, as well as Italy, are awaiting the outcome with interest.

Meanwhile Greece is massing her troops along the Bulgarian frontier, and Bulgarian reservists, according to advices from Salonika, have received orders to join the colors. In the countries allied against Germany, Austria and Turkey these recent developments are blamed upon German intrigue.

Officials at the state department believe Huerta will stop either at New York or at Havana.

INTERESTING MEETING

Arendtsville Parent Teachers Association Hears Addresses.

The Home and School Association of Arendtsville held its final meeting for the year in the High School Auditorium Monday evening. The schools furnished the music.

A number of members from the Parent Teachers' Association of Gettysburg were present and gave suggestions and much encouragement.

Mrs. McClean said the association stands for the child's welfare. It is not what we get but what we give that counts. Mr. McClean spoke of the new Arendtsville School building and urged work to develop a good school which would attract pupils from surrounding districts.

Prof. Burgoon spoke of some of the things which the parent has a right to demand of the school in the way of buildings, equipment, teachers and an education suitable to the local needs. Economic productivity is now the predominant qualification for good citizenship. The helplessness of the unskilled laborer is a pitiable condition in America to-day, and the public school is largely responsible for this. We desire to keep our boys and girls in the rural community and have them enjoy and respect rural life, therefore we must educate them so that they can enjoy it. For this reason we should not have the same system of education in our rural schools as in our city schools if that system is adapted to the needs of the city child.

A solo was given by Miss Anna Carey. Misses Vida Koser and Myrna Comfort rendered a piano duet. "The Rusty Sword" was read by Miss Lola Wireman.

The banner was won by the Primary School.

"Now He Belongs To The Ages"

Secretary Stanton's Epitaphic Words as Spoken by the Deathbed of Abraham Lincoln.

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Tragic Death of the Great War President—Worldwide Sorrow Over the Close of His Career.

By Capt. GEORGE L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.
[Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.]

REMARKABLE, perhaps phenomenal, thing about the passing of Lincoln from our national life is the fact that tidings of his taking off arrested the very pulsations of existence in countless thousands of his countrymen. For an indefinite space the life beat and thought beat, as it were, of men and women stood still or marked time.

The late Richard Watson Gilder of the Century, who was an indefatigable student of Lincoln and a nation wide traveler, said that twenty to forty years after the event, whenever he spoke to survivors of the tragic era, east, west or south, about the death of Lincoln, they would at once respond by recalling the time of day when they heard the news, where they were, what they were doing and even the words and ejaculations called forth in their presence by the paralyzing announcement.

And that personal paralysis—for such it seemed—was not limited to Lincoln's partisan admirers. Thoughtful adults of all shades of opinion as to the vital issues of the war were brought under its sway. In less forceful but none the less significant manner the outside world was affected. Abroad, as at home, and even in the enemy's camps criticism and aspersion reversed themselves by eulogy and panegyric when the bullet of a madman halted the life work of Abraham Lincoln the night of April 14 fifty years ago.

Fateful April 14.

No tragedy was needed to give April 14 prominence in the war annals of the republic nor of Lincoln. On that day four years before the stars and stripes had been for the first time humbled by men born under its folds, and that very day, April 14, 1865, the flag, by Lincoln's own order, had been hoisted to float again over the walls of Sumter. Moreover, four years before, in the hours corresponding to those when the stage was laid for the tragedy of 1865, Lincoln was preparing that epoch making proclamation which answered the indignity cast upon Old Glory by a clarion call to arms.

And the day itself, April 14, 1865, would have stood apart in executive annals as the one when Lincoln officially formulated the policy he had in mind for ending the political confusion due to the war, the terms upon which the seceding citizens would be received back as citizens. This process he once expressed in a characteristic smile that chickens are produced by hatching, not by smashing, eggs. All in all, the fateful day went, as other administrative days of the war had gone up to its close—up to the turning point from work to play. At the cabinet meeting General Grant, just from Appomattox, was present and called upon to explain the military situation. There were still over 100,000 Confederates in arms, including Johnston's 31,000 confronting Sherman in North Carolina. Mobile had been captured, but its garrison of 17,000 escaped. News of this, however, was not before the cabinet.

Interest at this meeting centered upon Lincoln's "Louisiana plan" for getting the seceders back into harmony with the states they had fought for four years. Said he, "We must extinguish resentment if we expect union." One cabinet officer described Lincoln's appearance and demeanor at this last meeting as "more cheerful and happy than I had ever seen him."

Last Appeal For Peace.

Early in the month Mr. Lincoln had been at the front with Grant when Petersburg and Richmond fell. The last he saw of the Confederacy it was going to pieces, and while using the phrase "after the war is over" in his official arguments he talked as though the end had come. At the cabinet meeting he merely clinched some of the arguments which he had used in a speech responding to a serenade at the White House the evening of the 11th, the last address to come from his lips in public. Referring to the new Louisiana state government which had just been organized by former secessionists to return to the Union, he said: "If we now reject and spurn them we do our utmost to disorganize and disperse them. We say to the white man: 'You are worthless or worse. We will neither help you nor be helped by you.' To the black man we say: 'This cup of liberty which these your old masters hold to your lips we will dash from you and leave you to the chances of gathering the spilled and scattered contents in some vague and undefined when, where and how.' * * * Conceal that the new government is only to what it should be as the egg is to the fowl, we will sooner have the fowl by hatching the egg than by smashing it."

Last Happy Hours.

The cabinet meeting over, Lincoln went for his usual daily drive with Mrs. Lincoln. He talked like a boy out of college about his plans. To her he said, "The war is over," and that at the end of his four years he would go back to Springfield to the home he had not visited since he left in February, 1861, to take his seat in the White House, and resume law practice.

On the return to the White House Lincoln saw a group of personal friends crossing the lawn and hailed them with the greeting, "Come back, boys; come back!" The party entered the executive office, and the hours passed so pleasantly that Lincoln forgot the flight of time and that he had made a theater engagement for the evening, which should be first in his mind. He began reading a humorous book and, although called many times to dinner, was loath to go, but promised each time to "come right away." Still reading, he finally received a somewhat peremptory summons, and the bearer reminded him of the theater engagement. That recalled—it was with General Grant—he left the party abruptly, never to see them again.

Grant had arrived direct from Appomattox on the 11th and during the 12th and 13th was engrossed with army affairs. At the cabinet meeting the morning of the 14th Lincoln asked the general to join him and Mrs. Lincoln that night at the theater, with Mrs. Grant, who was in the city, to make one of the party of four. Grant responded by saying he had promised his wife that he would go with her to Burlington, N. J., as soon as his duties at the capital were finished to visit their children, who were at school. If he did not leave for Burlington he would attend the theater.

Disappointment and Misgivings.

An extraordinarily popular play of the warlike was "Our American Cousin," in which an English lord was held up to ridicule. Our overseas cousins were far from popular here in those days. Laura Keane, a great favorite and the original producer of the play in America, had the star part as it was produced at Ford's theater and was having a benefit that night. It was announced that the president and his wife and the "hero of Appomattox" and his wife would occupy a box together.

Lincoln's story telling dalliance had delayed the White House dinner, but that was not all. While he was reading or telling stories that afternoon Mrs. Lincoln received a message saying that the Grants were departing for Burlington and would not therefore join the theater party. The theater manager was notified, but did not recall his announcement, and Lincoln was thereby, reluctantly, it seems, constrained to go anyway rather than disappoint the expectant public.

Major Rathbone and his stepdaughter, the daughter of Senator Ira Harris, were invited to take the chairs assigned to General and Mrs. Grant. Schuyler Colfax, who was to leave Washington next morning for Indiana on a mission for the president, called after dinner, and Lincoln talked with him for some time, making a written appointment for a third party at 9 a. m. the 15th. Still reluctant, Lincoln entered the carriage, but clung to Colfax's hand and referred vehemently to the errand the latter was charged with in the west.

The Last Ovation's Awful Sequel.

The action on the stage halted as the party was finally ushered in to the tune of "Hail to the Chief." Cheering, waving handkerchiefs and hats continued, the audience rising, until the presidential party was seated; then the play went on. Mr. Lincoln enjoyed the entertainment and seemed to lose the air of abstraction and indifference which had come upon him as soon as he learned of Grant's departure.

Many in the audience were still expectant of Grant's arrival, and during the evening every man who passed along the aisle behind the seats leading to the box entrance was scrutinized. One after another passed down the aisle, but no one approached the box until the second scene of act 3 was on, with Harry Hawke playing the character of Asa Trenchard, the Yankee of the piece, alone on the stage. This was about 10:30.

There was an awkward pause, an actress having just made her exit and another being about to enter. While the action halted a pistol shot was heard which all but the initiated supposed was in the play. But a scream from the president's box, confusion there and a man half leaping, half tumbling from that box to the stage brought the audience to their feet. Some eyes followed the motions of the intruder on the stage; others were riveted on the box. Miss Harris stepped to the side nearest the auditorium and excitedly asked for water or stimulants, adding, "The president is shot!"

Wild disorder took possession of the house and the troupe of players. Some excited ones attempted to pursue the fleeing assassin; others rushed toward the box entrance. The latter were kept at bay by Rathbone, who asked them to fetch surgeons. Laura Keane quieted the stage people and went to the side of the wounded president, securing a measure of isolation for the box until surgeons arrived.

Strange Death Chamber.

All this time, which was not long by the dial, the wounded president sat calmly in his chair as if dozing, his head drooping on his chest. From this posture the surgeons lifted him and stretched him on the floor, where, it is said, Laura Keane took his head in her lap and began to stanch the flow of blood from a wound (which she was first to discover) behind the ear. Although the weapon had been held close, the hard bone had checked the bullet's force, and it did not leave the head, so no laceration of that marvelous face was disturbed.

From the turmoil of the started theater the scene changed before mid night to the parlor floor of a house opposite, where the still unconscious president lay for the better part of the night, with only physicians, personal attendants and his wife and friends at the bedside. Later, on hurried summons, came Secretary of War Stanton, Welles, secretary of the navy; Senator Schuyler and Mr. Colfax, the last official to grasp the hand of Lincoln alive and to exchange words with him. These lingered to the last near the side of their dying chief, alternately watching and tending and sending out news messages and orders to the press and to the army camps. Gradually the surgeons revealed the hopelessness of the case—the imminence of a death that might change the nation's weal.

At 7:22 in the morning the pulse ceased to beat, the breathing stopped. Silence reigned over the watchers for an interval, and Stanton voiced in the happiest of phrases—words farreaching and prophetic—the dawn of a new Lincoln era. "Now he belongs to the ages."

The Whole Nation Horrified.

Before midnight of the 14th brief telegrams from Washington reached the big cities, and the editors took them as mere rumors. The first simply said that the president had been shot. Soon followed the particulars that the deed was done in a theater; that he was alive and might recover. The news was accepted and printed for what it was worth. Private telegrams were sent out by scores. Excited men ran to Washington hotels and to other theaters and cried out the shooting, but were not believed.

In a short time word was added to Washington dispatches that Secretary of State Seward and his son had been attacked about the time the president was shot, and the idea of a murderous conspiracy in retaliation for Lee's defeat and the fall of Richmond instantly took root. A telegram brought Grant back by the first return train; army headquarters notified all commanders in the field, guards were called out in Washington, and all important points and every army camp, every community where the telegraph ran, was roused to a state bordering on terror. "What next? What next?" was on many a tremulous lip.

Morning papers of the 15th had merely disjointed messages about the attacks on Lincoln and Seward, but enough to pack the streets and market places with excited people. The morning wore on; anxiety deepened. Then toward noon bulletin boards, which were a wartime institution in every town and city, flashed up the tidings—"Lincoln's dead!"

Filial Fondness.

"What is in the mail from daughter?" asked mother, eagerly. "A thousand kisses," answered father, grimly, "and sixteen handkerchiefs, two waists and four batches of ribbons for you to wash and mend."—Kansas City Journal.

WON'T ADMIT EMBARGO RIGHT

Justification of Ban on Neutral
Commerce Denied.

U. S. TO ASK REPARATION

The Allies Are Warned That Damages
For Violation of International Law
Is Expected.

Washington, April 6.—The United States government made public its note to Great Britain announcing that it "could not admit" either the right of the allies or their claims for justification in placing an embargo on all commercial intercourse between Germany and neutral countries.

"To admit it," says the communication, "would be to assume an attitude of unneutrality toward the present enemies of Great Britain, which would be obviously inconsistent with the solemn obligations of this government in the present circumstances, and for Great Britain to make such a claim would be for her to abandon and set at naught the principles for which she has consistently and earnestly contended in other times and circumstances."

The note reviews at length the legal phases of a blockade of belligerent territory and virtual blockade of neutral coasts. In conclusion the United States states its expectation that Great Britain, after having considered "the possibilities of serious interruption of American trade" under the "Order in Council," "will take the steps necessary to avoid them, and in the event that they should unhappily occur, will be prepared to make full reparation for every act, which under the rules of international law constitutes a violation of neutral rights."

The American communication interprets the circumstances under which Great Britain claims to be justified in adopting retaliatory measures toward her enemies as "merely a reason for certain extraordinary activities" by her naval forces "and not an excuse for or a prelude to any unlawful action."

"If the course of the present enemies of Great Britain," the note adds, "should prove to be in fact tainted by illegality and disregard of the principles of war sanctioned by enlightened nations, it cannot be supposed and this government does not for a moment suppose that his majesty's government would wish the same taint to attach to their own actions."

Ambassador Sharp at Paris was instructed to present a copy of the American note to Great Britain, to the French foreign office, with the statement that although the French admiralty decree had not been officially received in Washington, it was understood to be identical with the British Order in Council, and the American government therefore made similar reply.

BRITISH BATTLESHIP IS SUNK BY TURKS

Lord Nelson Riddled by Forts
After Grounding.

Berlin, April 6.—A report received in Berlin from Athens says the British battleship Lord Nelson, stranded inside the Dardanelles straits, has been destroyed by the fire of the Turkish guns on shore.

This information was given out by the Overseas News agency. The battleship Lord Nelson was a vessel of 16,75 tons and was the flagship of Vice Admiral Sir Cecil Burney. Her captain was John W. L. McClintock.

The battleship carried four 12-inch and ten 9.2-inch guns, together with twenty-four 12-pounders and two 3-pounders.

The Lord Nelson was the sister ship of the Agamemnon. These two were the last battleships of the pre-dreadnought class built by Great Britain. The Lord Nelson was of comparatively modern construction, having been provided for in the British naval estimates of 1905-6.

RUSSIANS DRIVE Foe BACK

Great Army Smashes Austrians In the Carpathians.

London, April 6.—With the Austrian army in retreat from Bessarabia and the Russian army debouching from Dukla Pass toward the heart of Hungary, it is the firm conviction of military observers in London that the Austrian campaign in the Carpathians and in Bukovina has collapsed.

The opinion is expressed in some quarters that the huge German reinforcements being sent to the Carpathian front may stiffen the Austrian resistance for a time, but it is believed no force available can stop the Russian avalanche.

The Austrian army opposing the Muscovite troops in the Beskid region began a retreat on Saturday.

The retreat from the Beskids, if it is as general as Petrograd advices indicate, opens a new gate to Hungary. The passes through this range have been contested desperately for more than three months through all the snows and bitter cold. The fighting the last week has been particularly stubborn, the official reports show.

JAPAN OUT OF EUROPE'S WAR

Authorities Kill Project of Sending Volunteer Army to Aid Allies.

Tokio, April 6.—The project to send a Japanese volunteer army to Europe has been abandoned.

The plan was rejected by the military authorities because it would affect the strength of the army in war time, as the volunteers would come from the ranks of the reservists, and because the surplus arms of the army already had been sold to the allied powers and none would be available for the volunteers.

WILLARD KNOCKS OUT JOHNSON

Smash on the Jaw in 26th
Round Wins.

NEGRO'S BLOWS LACKED STEAM

White Man Proves the Stronger of the Two and Succeeds in Wearing Out His Dusky Opponent.

Havana, April 6.—Jess Willard, the Kansas cowboy, is the new heavyweight champion pugilist of the world. He knocked out Jack Johnson, the holder, in the twenty-sixth round of their fight here, giving him the title.

A right smash to the jaw ended the battle. The result came as a complete surprise to everyone. For twenty-four rounds the colored man had held the lead and landed blows almost at will, but he did not possess the sting of old, and Willard was able to take all the punishment without wincing.

Johnson had all his old assurance and confidence, but Willard meant business and was not bothered by the champion's tactics. In the twenty-fifth round the tide began to turn, but no one thought the end was near. In the twenty-sixth round Willard managed to send his right home to Johnson's stomach and the latter was in trouble. His knees sagged and he was almost down when Willard was on top of him like an enraged tiger.

Taking careful aim, the white man smashed once, twice on Johnson's jaw and down went the black man on his back.

Referee Welsh stood over him and counted the fatal seconds, while the big crowd cheered in ecstasy. Johnson made an effort to get to his feet, but "ten" was tolled out before he succeeded and there was a new world's champion.

The result showed that Johnson has gone back a lot and has lost his former stamina and punching ability. He hit Willard enough times to have beaten three men, but his blows were lacking in steam, and not once was he able to drive Willard off his feet.

Twice he had the challenger steady on his pins, but each time youth and perfect condition came to Willard's aid and enabled him to weather the storm. Then, when Johnson had begun to shoot his bolt, Willard gained more confidence and the end came quickly.

After the battle Johnson had little to say, except that a better and a younger man had taken the title. Willard was too happy to talk, but remarked that he was confident from the moment the fight started that he would be returned the winner.

In the challenger's corner were Tom Jones, Willard's manager; Tex O'Rourke, Jim Savage and Walter Monahan. Johnson was seconded by Tom Flanagan, George Munroe, McVey, Dave Mills and Bog Armstrong.

Johnson objected to a woman spectator in the press ringside stand, and she retired to an adjacent box. The negro was clad in bright blue trunks and no belt. Willard wore dark blue trunks and an American flag as a belt.

Johnson receives $30,000 for the fight and Willard gets a percentage of the net gate receipts.

SLAYER STABBED TO DEATH

Police Believe "Vendetta" Is Responsible For Murder.

Johnstown, Pa., April 6.—The body of Giuseppe Perry, who was being pursued by the police on suspicion of having killed Frank Perry, of this city, Saturday, was found pierced by a score of stiletto wounds at the mouth of a mine east of the city.

The police are seeking a clue to the murderers, several evidently having been concerned in the vendetta. The murders are the latest of a long series which have occurred in the Italian colony of Johnstown within the past five years, and all of which have baffled the police.

The Italians refuse to talk, professing ignorance, but it is claimed that members of the colony know who is responsible for the killings, but are in terror of the vendetta.

Trenton, N. BULGAR GUERRILLAS RAID GREEK BORDER

Band Driven Out of Serbia
Starts New Drive.

London, April 6.—The roving band of Bulgars, driven out of Serbia after its sudden raid, has penetrated into Greece at three points, according to Salonika dispatches.

The English press sees in this episode the possibility of developments which may mean a flare-up in the smoldering Balkan situation.

Advices reaching London by way of Rome, however, assert that Bulgaria has agreed to give full satisfaction to both Greece and Serbia.

If this is true, probably the only sequel to the episode will be to draw from Bulgaria a definite statement as to the policy she purposes to pursue. All the Balkan nations, as well as Italy, are awaiting the outcome with interest.

Meanwhile Greece is massing her troops along the Bulgarian frontier, and Bulgarian reservists, according to advices from Salonika, have received orders to join the colors. In the countries allied against Germany, Austria and Turkey these recent developments are blamed upon German intrigue.

Former Mexican Dictator Expected to Washington, April 6.—General Victoriano Huerta, former dictator of Mexico, who for nearly a year has been living in exile in Spain, according to information received here, will arrive in New York at the end of the present week.

From the American consular agent at Cadiz, Spain, the state department has received confirmation of the cable press dispatches that General Huerta sailed from Cadiz on March 31.

Officials at the state department believe Huerta will stop either at New York or at Havana.

INTERESTING MEETING

Arendtsville Parent Teachers Association Hears Addresses.

The Home and School Association of Arendtsville held its final meeting for the year in the High School Auditorium Monday evening. The schools furnished the music.

A number of members from the Parent Teachers' Association of Gettysburg were present and gave suggestions and much encouragement.

Mrs. McLean said the association stands for the child's welfare. It is not what we get but what we give that counts. Mr. McLean spoke of the new Arendtsville School building and urged work to develop a good school which would attract pupils from surrounding districts.

Prof. Burgoon spoke of some of the things which the parent has a right to demand of the school in the way of buildings, equipment, teachers and an education suitable to the local needs. Economic productiveness is now the predominant qualification for good citizenship. The helplessness of the unskilled laborer is a pitiable condition in America to-day, and the public school is largely responsible for this. We desire to keep our boys and girls in the rural community and have them enjoy and respect rural life, therefore we must educate them so that they can enjoy it. For this reason we should not have the same system of education in our rural schools as in our city schools if that system is adapted to the needs of the city child.

A solo was given by Miss Anna Carey, Misses Vida Koser and Myrna Comfort rendered a piano duet. "The Rusty Sword" was read by Miss Lola Wireman.

The banner was won by the Primary School.

"Now He Belongs To The Ages"

Secretary Stanton's Epitaphic Words as Spoken by the Deathbed of Abraham Lincoln.

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Tragic Death of the Great War President—Worldwide Sorrow Over the Close of His Career.

By Capt. GEORGE L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.
[Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.]

REMARKABLE, perhaps phenomenal, thing about the passing of Lincoln from our national life is the fact that tidings of his taking off arrested the very pulsations of existence in countless thousands of his countrymen. For an indefinite space the life beat and thought beat, as it were, of men and women stood still or marked time.

The late Richard Watson Gilder of the Century, who was an indefatigable student of Lincoln and a nation-wide traveler, said that twenty to forty years after the event, whenever he spoke to survivors of the tragic era, east, west or south, about the death of Lincoln, they would at once respond by recalling the time of day when they heard the news, where they were, what they were doing and even the words and ejaculations called forth in their presence by the paralyzing announcement.

And that personal paralysis—for such it seemed—was not limited to Lincoln's partisan admirers. Thoughtful adults of all shades of opinion as to the vital issues of the war were brought under its sway. In less forceful but none the less significant manner the outside world was affected. Abroad, as at home, and even in the enemy's camps criticism and aspersion reversed themselves by eulogy and panegyric when the bullet of a madman halted the life work of Abraham Lincoln the night of April 14 fifty years ago.

Fateful April 14.

No tragedy was needed to give April 14 prominence in the war annals of the republic nor of Lincoln. On that day four years before the stars and stripes had been for the first time hauled by men born under its folds, and that very day, April 14, 1865, the flag, by Lincoln's own order, had been hoisted to float again over the walls of Sumter. Moreover, four years before, in the hours corresponding to those when the stage was laid for the tragedy of 1865, Lincoln was preparing that epoch-making proclamation which answered the indignity cast upon Old Glory by a clarion call to arms.

And the day itself, April 14, 1865, would have stood apart in executive annals as the one when Lincoln officially formulated the policy he had in mind for ending the political confusion due to the war, the terms upon which the seceding citizens would be received back as citizens. This process he once expressed in a characteristic smile that chickens are produced by hatching, not by smothering, eggs. All in all, the fateful day went, as other administrative days of the war had gone up to its close—up to the turning point from work to play. At the cabinet meeting General Grant, just from Appomattox, was present and called upon to explain the military situation. There were still over 100,000 Confederates in arms, including Johnston's 31,000 confronting Sherman in North Carolina. Mobile had been captured, but its garrison of 17,000 escaped. News of this, however, was not before the cabinet.

Interest at this meeting centered upon Lincoln's "Louisiana plan" for getting the seceders back into harmony with the states they had fought for four years. Said he, "We must extinguish resentment if we expect union." One cabinet officer described Lincoln's appearance and demeanor at this last meeting as "more cheerful and happy than I had ever seen him."

Last Appeal For Peace.

Early in the month Mr. Lincoln had been at the front with Grant when Petersburg and Richmond fell. The last he saw of the Confederacy it was going to pieces, and while using the phrase "after the war is over" in his official arguments he talked as though the end had come. At the cabinet meeting he merely clinched some of the arguments which he had used in a speech responding to a serenade at the White House the evening of the 11th, the last address to come from his lips in public. Referring to the new Louisiana state government, which had just been organized by former secessionists to return to the Union, he said: "If we now reject and spurn them we do our utmost to disorganize and disperse them. We say to the white man: 'You are worthless or worse. We will neither help you nor be helped by you.' To the black man we say: 'This cup of liberty which these your old masters hold to your lips we will dash from'

Last Happy, Happy Hours.

The cabinet meeting over, Lincoln went for his usual daily drive with Mrs. Lincoln. He talked like a boy out of college about his plans. To her he said, "The war is over," and that at the end of his four years he would go back to Springfield to the home he had not visited since he left in February, 1861, to take his seat in the White House, and resume law practice.

On the return to the White House Lincoln saw a group of personal friends crossing the lawn and hailed them with the greeting, "Come back, boys; come back!" The party entered the executive office, and the hours passed so pleasantly that Lincoln forgot the flight of time and that he had made a theater engagement for the evening, which should be first in his mind. He began reading a humorous book and, although called many times to dinner, was loath to go, but promised each time to "come right away."

Still reading, he finally received a somewhat peremptory summons, and the bearer reminded him of the theater engagement. That recalled—it was with General Grant—he left the party abruptly, never to see them again.

Grant had arrived direct from Appomattox on the 11th and during the 12th and 13th was engrossed with army affairs. At the cabinet meeting the morning of the 14th Lincoln asked the general to join him and Mrs. Lincoln that night at the theater, with Mrs. Grant, who was in the city, to make one of the party of four. Grant responded by saying he had promised his wife that he would go with her to Burlington, N. J., as soon as his duties at the capital were finished to visit their children, who were at school. If he did not leave for Burlington he would attend the theater.

Disappointment and Misgivings.

An extraordinarily popular play of the wartime was "Our American Cousin," in which an English lord was held up to ridicule. Our overseas cousins were far from popular here in those days. Laura Keane, a great favorite and the original producer of the play in America, had the star part as it was produced at Ford's theater and was having a benefit that night. It was announced that the president and his wife and the "hero of Appomattox" and his wife would occupy a box together.

Lincoln's story telling dalliance had delayed the White House dinner, but that was not all. While he was reading or telling stories that afternoon Mrs. Lincoln received a message saying that the Grants were departing for Burlington and would not therefore join the theater party. The theater manager was notified, but did not recall his announcement, and Lincoln was thereby, reluctantly, it seems, constrained to go anyway rather than disappoint the expectant public.

Major Rathbone and his stepister, the daughter of Senator Ira Harris, were invited to take the chairs assigned to General and Mrs. Grant. Schuyler Colfax, who was to leave Washington next morning for Indiana on a mission for the president, called after dinner, and Lincoln talked with him for some time, making a written appointment for a third party at 9 a. m. the 15th. Still reluctant, Lincoln entered the carriage, but clung to Colfax's hand and referred vehemently to the errand the latter was charged with in the west.

The Last Ovation's Awful Sequel.

The action on the stage halted as the party was finally ushered in to the tune of "Hail to the Chief." Cheering, waving handkerchiefs and hats continued, the audience rising, until the presidential party was seated; then the play went on. Mr. Lincoln enjoyed the entertainment and seemed to lose the air of abstraction and indifference which had come upon him as soon as he learned of Grant's departure.

Many in the audience were still expectant of Grant's arrival, and during the evening every man who passed along the aisle behind the seats leading to the box entrance was scrutinized. One after another passed down the aisle, but no one approached the box until the second scene of act 3 was on, with Harry Hawke playing the character of Asa Trenchard, the Yankee of the piece, alone on the stage. This was about 10:30.

There was an awkward pause, an actress having just made her exit and another being about to enter. While the action halted a pistol shot was heard which all but the initiated supposed was in the play. But a scream from the president's box, confusion there and a man half leaping, half tumbling from that box to the stage brought the audience to their feet. Some eyes followed the motions of the intruder on the stage; others were riveted on the box. Miss Harris stepped to the side nearest the auditorium and excitedly asked for water or stimulants, adding, "The president is shot."

Wild disorder took possession of the house and the troupe of players. Some excited ones attempted to pursue the fleeing assassin; others rushed toward the box entrance. The latter were kept at bay by Rathbone, who asked them to fetch surgeons. Laura Keane quieted the stage people and went to the side of the wounded president, securing a measure of isolation for the box until surgeons arrived.

Strange Death Chamber.

All this time, which was not long by the dial, the wounded president sat calmly in his chair as if dozing, his head drooping on his chest. From this posture the surgeons lifted him and stretched him on the floor, where, it is said, Laura Keane took his head in her lap and began to stanch the flow of blood from a wound (which she was first to discover) behind the ear. Although the weapon had been held close, the hard bone had checked the bullet's force, and it did not leave the head, so no laceration of that marvelous face was disturbed.

From the turmoil of the startled theater the scene changed before midnight to the parlor floor of a house opposite, where the still unconscious president lay for the better part of the night, with only physicians, personal attendants and his wife and friends at the bedside. Later, on hurried summons, came Secretary of War Stanton, Welles, secretary of the navy; Senator Sumner and Mr. Colfax, the last official to grasp the hand of Lincoln alive and to exchange words with him. These lingered to the last near the side of their dying chief, alternately watching and bidding and sending out news messages and orders to the press and to the army camps. Gradually the surgeons revealed the hopelessness of the case—the imminence of a death that might change the nation's weal.

At 7:22 in the morning the pulse ceased to beat, the breathing stopped. Silence reigned over the watchers for an interval, and Stanton voiced in the happiest of phrases—words farreaching and prophetic—the dawn of a new Lincoln era. "Now he belongs to the ages."

The Whole Nation Horrified.

Before midnight of the 14th brief telegrams from Washington reached the big cities, and the editors took them as mere rumors. The first simply said that the president had been shot. Soon followed the particulars that the deed was done in a theater; that he was alive and might recover. The news was accepted and printed for what it was worth. Private telegrams were sent out by scores. Excited men ran to Washington hotels and to other theaters and cried out the shooting, but were not believed.

In a short time word was added to Washington dispatches that Secretary of State Seward and his son had been attacked about the time the president was shot, and the idea of a murderous conspiracy in retaliation for Lee's defeat and the fall of Richmond instantly took root. A telegram brought Grant back by the first return train; army headquarters notified all commanders in the field, guards were called out in Washington, and all important points and every army camp, every community where the telegraph ran, was roused to a state bordering on terror. "What next? What next?" was on many a tremulous lip.

Morning papers of the 15th had merely disjointed messages about the attacks on Lincoln and Seward, but enough to pack the streets and market places with excited people. The morning wore on; anxiety deepened. Then toward noon bulletin boards, which were a wartime institution in every town and city, flashed up the tidings—"Lincoln dead!"

Filial Fondness.

"What is in the mail from daughter?" asked mother, eagerly. "A thousand kisses," answered father, grimly, "and sixteen handkerchiefs, two waistbands and four batches of ribbons for you to wash and mend."—Kansas City Journal.

A Triangular Race

By F. A. MITCHEL

It was a bright spring morning, when one feels like breathing in the fresh air and stretching one's legs. I determined on a long walk before luncheon and started with that end in view. On passing the Stanley's place I saw Helen coming out dressed in morning costume, with a short skirt and boots. Waiting till she reached the gate, I joined her. Comparing notes, we learned that we were both out for the same purpose. We joined forces.

We had gone but a short distance when Tom Bartlett struck us square in the flank from a side street.

"We're going for a tramp into the country," said Helen to Tom. "Come along."

"Thanks awfully," said Tom, looking at me doubtfully. "They say that two's company, three's a crowd."

"Not a bit of it—the more the merrier," said Helen.

Now, there is a lot more in this than appears on the surface. Bartlett and I were rivals for Miss Stanley's affections. We believed that she was hesitating between the two of us. I had been trying to get her to come to a decision, and I presume Tom had been trying to do the same thing. Tom joined us, but was too much of a gentleman to intrude himself for the walk without some hint from me that I would not object. Reaching a corner, he lifted his hat with a view to leaving us, when I said:

"You have your orders from the lady, Tom; it is your duty to obey them."

I saw mischief, design, devilry, in Helen's eyes, but nothing that I could define. When we reached the open country she drew long breaths of ozone into her lungs and said with exhilaration:

"I feel as though I must run."

"So do I," said Tom. "Come on."

We ran abreast for several hundred yards, then dropped into a walk again.

"I wonder," said Bartlett, "why more decisions are not arrived at by race than by lot."

"They have a custom in Lapland," said Helen, "wherein if a man wishes to marry a girl he chases her. If she accepts him she permits him to catch her; if she refuses she runs for all she is worth."

What put it into my head to make my next remark I know not.

"If two fellows in Lapland want the same girl," I said, "do they race for her?"

"I never heard anything about that," said Helen.

Looking sideways into her eye, I saw a spark in it that told much more than her words. It started a flame within me that burned recklessly. But I held back for some time before showing it. After awhile Helen said she was pining for another run.

"Suppose," I said deliberately, "I stopped."

"Suppose what?" asked Helen.

"Suppose that you take 500 yards start for a race. And suppose that Tom and I separate so that each of the three of us stands on the angle of a triangle. Then suppose you run for it and Tom and I try which can touch you first."

Helen said never a word, but I saw by that spark in her eye that she caught my meaning.

"Is it a go, Tom?" I asked.

"I'm agreed if the lady is."

"I don't mind," said Helen under her breath.

"Very well; Tom, you stay here. I go to that stump over there. Suppose you," I said to Helen, "advance to that lone tree in the center of the field."

Helen and I started, leaving Tom where he was. To equalize advantage between Tom and me she must run on a straight line perpendicular to the base line of the angles on which Tom and I stood. I doubted if she would do this. It would be human nature for her to veer toward the man she wished to win. I don't mean that the race would be an acceptance of the winner, but it would show a preference for him over the other.

When our positions were taken Helen turned and looked at us. It was evident she was laying out the course she should pursue. Then she called, "Are you ready?" and on our response that we were she turned and dashed away.

There was plenty of room for the race, for the field stretched a long way, with but one fence in sight, and that was open at many places. I was by far a better runner than Bartlett, who was a studious chap and seldom took exercise. I had no desire to win the race unless Helen gave me an opportunity; therefore I ran on a dog trot. Bartlett ran on much the same gait. For a time Helen kept on the perpendicular line; then, coming to a bit of boggy ground, she was obliged to decide whether she would go to the right or to the left of it. She went as far as she could before deciding; then zigzagged with apparent indecision, finally turning to the left, which shortened my line.

The moment she made her decision I closed up on her and touched her on the shoulder. Turning to look at Tom I saw that he had dropped into a walk. Poor fellow! He had put the same interpretation on the race as I.

The result closed all rivalry between Tom and me, but did not decide my fate. I was held in suspense for some time longer before I received my answer, but when it came it was satisfactory.

Scandinavian Housekeeping.
In Scandinavia the peasant women have had their fireless methods of cooking for a long time. While breakfast was cooking, the pot containing the stew for dinner was brought to a boil then placed inside a second pot, and the whole snugly ensconced between the feather beds, still warm from the night's occupancy. Some of these women had a loosened hearthstone and a hole beneath.

Makes a Good Soldier.
It is said that next to bravery the Ghoorka's most characteristic quality is his vanity—really the pride of achievement, because once he has won a position against the foe it is well nigh impossible to dislodge him. He simply must fight until he is knocked over or killed.

Awful.
"I heard Gibbs is sick in bed," said Blithers.
"Yes—he's got cirrhosis of the liver," said Jike.
"Cirrhosis of the liver?" cried Blithers. "Gee! Think of having a woman's club internally!"—Harper's Weekly.

EASILY KILLED

By Breathing into Throat, Nose and Lungs a Pure Antiseptic Air.

If you have catarrh and want to get rid of it you must kill the germs which cause the disease.

The best known way of destroying Catarrh germs is to breathe into the air passages of your nose and throat and lungs the pleasant, penetrating air of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei). Hyomei is made from purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other powerful, healing, antiseptic and germicidal ingredients. You breathe it through a little pocket inhaler which The People's Drug Store, and other leading druggists in Gettysburg and vicinity are furnishing with every complete treatment sold. Every time you inhale the sweet, fragrant air of Hyomei through this little device you are drawing into your swollen, inflamed, germ laden membranes a medicated air which will not only reduce all the swelling and inflammation and open your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages, but will absolutely and positively destroy every trace of Catarrh germ life it reaches. Druggists are so sure of the blessed, lasting relief that Hyomei brings to catarrh sufferers that they sell it invariably on the positive guarantee that money paid will be refunded if successful results are not secured from its use.

ATTACK UPON COMMISSION

Former Attorney-General Tries to Discredit Public
Body

Harrisburg, April 5.

In administrative quarters here there is much quiet criticism of the attack which John C. Bell, as counsel for the trainmen's organization, made last week on the Public Service Commission.

The consensus of opinion is that this attack comes with very poor grace from the man who so largely shaped the Public Utility Company law of the state and who, as attorney general, was the chief legal adviser of Governor Tener.

As the close associate and adviser of the governor, Mr. Bell was doubtless consulted when the commissioners were appointed. It is remarkable, therefore, that Mr. Bell should now attack the commission and virtually charge it with incompetence. The only explanation seems to be that he recognizes the great force of the railroad proposition for reference of the question of manning of trains to the commission and that he felt the only way to defeat this proposition was to discredit the Public Service Commission.

As a matter of fact the Public Service Commissioners have full power to employ experts to advise them upon any subject. The Commission has power over the facilities of public service companies, especially railroads, and to argue its incompetence to pass upon a simple question like the manning of trains is to condemn its capacity to pass upon great and complicated questions involved in the control of the facilities and the financing of public service companies.

The above article is furnished by the railroads in their efforts for the repeal of the Full Crew Bill.

U.S. DEMANDS PAY FOR LOSS OF FRYE

Presents Claim For $228,059 to Germany.

FOR OWNERS AND CAPTAIN

Ambassador Gerard is Instructed to Lay Matter Before the Teuton Government.

Washington, April 6.—The American note to Germany on the sinking of the sailing ship William P. Frye by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich was made public.

This is the text of the instruction to Ambassador Gerard:

"You are instructed to present the following note to the German foreign office:

"Under instructions from my government I have the honor to present a claim for $228,059.54, with interest from Jan. 28, 1915, against the German government, on behalf of the owners and captain of the American sailing vessel William P. Frye, for damages suffered by them on account of the destruction of that vessel on the high seas by the German armed cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, Jan. 28, 1915.

"The facts upon which this claim arises, and by reason of which the German government is held responsible by the government of the United States for the attendant loss and damages, are, briefly, as follows:

"The William P. Frye, a steel sailing vessel of 374 tons gross tonnage, owned by American citizens and sailing under the United States flag and register, cleared from Seattle, Nov. 4, 1914, under charter to M. H. Houser, of Portland, Ore., bound for Queenstown, Falmouth or Plymouth for orders, with a cargo consisting of 186,950 bushels of wheat, owned by the aforesaid Houser and consigned 'unto order or to its assigns,' all of which appears from the ship's papers, which were taken from the vessel at the time of her destruction by the commander of the German cruiser.

"On Jan. 27, 1915, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich encountered the Frye on the high seas; compelled her to stop, and sent on board an armed boarding party who took possession. After an examination of the ship's papers, the commander of the cruiser directed that the cargo be thrown overboard, but subsequently decided to destroy the vessel, and on the following morning by his order, the Frye was sunk.

"The claim of the owners and captain consists of the following items:

"Value of ship, equipment and outfit, $150,000.

"Actual freight as per freight list $634, 1000—2,240 tons at 32¢—

£8,180—19¢ at $4.86, $39,759.54.

"Traveling and other expenses of Captain Kiehne and Arthur Sewall & Company, agents of ship, in connection with making affidavits, preparing and filing claim, $500.

"Personal effects of Captain H. H. Kiehne, $300.

"Damages covering loss due to deprivation of use of ship, $37,500. Total, $228,059.54.

"By direction of my government I have the honor to request that full reparation be made by the German government for the destruction of the William P. Frye by the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

SLAYER ELECTROCUTED

Put to Death in House He Helped to Build.

Bellefonte, Pa., April 6.—Nicolo Mandolito, of Fayette county, was electrocuted at the penitentiary at Rockview for the murder of Lillian Leonard in a restaurant at Uniontown on May 1, 1914.

Mandolito walked unmoved to the death chair, attended by Father Caprio.

The irony of fate in Mandolito's electrocution is that he was among the squad of prisoners who helped dig the foundation for the death house. In less than a month after being turned out on parole he killed Miss Leonard.

PLAN TO GUARANTEE DEPOSITS

Funds May Be Protected by Bonding of Guaranty Company.

Washington, April 6.—Attorney General Gregory has approved a plan for guarantee of national bank deposits which does not require new legislation and does not threaten the banks run on sound lines with payments of losses incurred through bad banking in other institutions.

The plan was devised by the comptroller of the currency, John Skelton Williams, and was laid before the attorney general by Secretary McAdoo. In substance it provides that national banks which desire to do so may have their deposits guaranteed by a guaranty company.

The attorney general's opinion was asked on the question whether a national bank could pay a premium to a guaranty company for that purpose, and he has decided that under the section of the bank law which authorizes banks to take precautions to protect their deposits such payments may be made.

PUSHES HOT POKER AGAINST HEART

Uses Odd Method in Effort to Commit Suicide.

Wilmington, Del., April 6.—Desperate over something which he does not divulge, Gunnie Mangine, a gateman at the Concord crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, heated a poker red hot, held it to his breast and pressed it toward his heart until he fainted from the pain.

Mangine was found unconscious by a young man, who informed Track Superintendent John Curran, who had the injured man sent to the Delaware hospital. There it was found that he had a burn two inches deep that almost reached his heart.

The man recovered sufficiently to talk. He said that he wanted to die and had heated the poker red hot and attempted to force it into his heart. He is in a critical condition.

STATE ROAD WORK BEGINS

About 5000 Men Take Up Maintenance Program.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 6.—Maintenance work on state highways was begun in nearly all of the sixty-seven counties.

It was said at the department that approximately 5000 men in all counties were employed. This work was mapped out during the early winter, and if the weather remains fair it is expected that many miles of state roads will be put into fair condition during the week.

The treasury now has in the automobile license fund $700,000 for this work, and it is expected that 6000 men will be at work by the end of the week.

CROPS UNHURT BY STORM

Reports Show Fruit Trees Withstood Shock of Gale and Cold.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 6.—"The reports from the storm district of the state show that fruit trees and farm crops in general were not damaged by the disturbances of the past few days," said Professor Surface, of the state board of agriculture.

"Not only did the farmers escape damage as a result of the recent storm," he said, "but the outlook at present is for a record fruit crop in Pennsylvania this year. Except in the northern section of the state, where the winter was exceedingly severe, the peach buds are uninjured, and the outlook was never better for fruit in general."

Doctors Using Amolox With Great Success

Endorsed By Leading Druggist.

Amolox, the new remedy for eczema and all diseases of the skin, is curing thousands of eczema sufferers that have been unable to find relief after trying everything else. A well-known physician, who had a patient with a bad case of eczema of the scalp, head almost entirely covered with scaly sores—rapidly becoming bald, reported after one week's treatment, that the hair stopped falling out, scalp was rapidly healing and a new growth of healthy hair starting. Quoting the exact words of the doctor, "That Amolox is great stuff."

Amolox when applied to the skin stops all itch and burning instantly. Will cure eczema and all skin troubles and will clear up a mucky complexion, or pimples on face in 24 hours.

All sufferers from eczema, salt rheum, tetter, acne, barber's itch and pimples on the face should go to their druggists at once and get a bottle of Amolox and box ointment. If you are not satisfied, it will not cost you a cent. The People's Drug Store will refund your money if not satisfactory. Trial size 50 cents.

Fish FAGOTS. Potato Puffs.

Sultana Rice. Individual Cakes.
Demitasse.

WHEN wishing to substitute fish for the meat course try fish fagots, which you are sure to pronounce a success if made according to the recipe given below. With the fish serve potato puffs and celery au gratin.

Souffle Soup.

Slice one onion, one carrot and mince a teaspoonful of parsley for if you want the heads for garnishing tie a little bundle of the stalks in muslin and cook in enough cold water to cover for fifteen minutes. Add salt and pepper. When the vegetables are tender add one and one-half pints of milk and a tablespoonful of butter and cook until the vegetables can be put through a hair sieve. Replace in the pan. Mix a teaspoonful of corn flour smoothly in cold water, then add some of the hot soup and mix smooth, and then pour the thickening into the remainder of the soup. Taste and add salt and pepper if necessary and a pinch of sugar. Bring to a boil and boil for five minutes. Cool a little and then beat in the yolk of an egg. The soup must cool before you add the egg or it will curdle. Lastly, whip the white of the egg and stir it in and serve immediately.

Fish FAGOTS.

Take any cooked white fish and free it carefully from bones and skin. Flake it finely and weigh it. Take some mashed potato, add a little butter, milk, salt and pepper and beat until light and creamy. Take two-thirds of fish and one of potato (or equal weights if you are short of fish), mix and season with a little more salt and pepper and a spoonful of essence of anchovy to one pound of fish and potato; moisten with the beaten yolk of an egg. Form into little cork shapes on a floured board, brush with beaten egg and roll in finely crushed vermicelli; fry, drain and serve very hot. If you have any oyster, shrimp or anchovy sauce add it to the fish.

Potato Puff.

Take one-half pound of mashed potato and enrich it with a dessertspoonful of butter and a beaten egg yolk, and then add enough flour to enable you to roll the potato out on the pastry board. But into rounds, fold the potato paste over, wet the edges with egg yolk and pinch together. Coat with beaten egg and crumbs. Let them stand ten minutes and then fry or, if liked, bake in a floured tin in the oven.

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers" said one of the greatest thinkers this country ever produced.

Says the Lawyer:

"When a lawyer loses his nerve in front of the jury, his client had better plead guilty. That's why I always have a quiet, calming chew of PICNIC TWIST before court opens.

"While a man's chewing PICNIC TWIST he's thinking, not talking, and thinking wins more cases than oratory. And speaking of thinking—show me a jury of tobacco chewers and I'll show you a jury that will decide according to the law and the evidence."

PICNIC TWIST is the tobacco for men who like a soothing, sweet, long-lasting chew that won't get on your nerves, or cause them to get back at you.

The mild, mellow part of the leaf that goes into PICNIC TWIST makes it the sort of chew you'll like better than any dark, "heavy" tobacco you ever tried. And it will like you better.

ITCHING ECZEMA IS DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Use like cold cream to subdue irritation and clear the skin.

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs and body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur, says a noted dermatologist.

He informs us that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears.

Those troubled should obtain from any druggist an ounce of bold-sulphur, which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. If isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching Eczema, proves very welcome.

To-morrow—the First Advance Spring Showing of Women's Wooltex Tailored Suits and Coats

Ready for Women who like to be First to Wear the New Fashions

TO-MORROW we will present the most interesting advance collection of women's Wooltex tailored suits and coats that we have ever shown.

We have planned this display to meet the desires of the many fashionable women who are always eager to take advantage of the opportunity to secure the handsome spring styles at the first moment when winter apparel can be set aside.

Every garment in the collection has been selected for its graceful style; its refinement; the beauty of its fabric and the superlative manner in which it is made.

The new suits have many charming original features. The models this season are more conservative because the war abroad has subdued fashions everywhere. The military influence is apparent in some of them. Never in the past have the lines of the garments shown greater art on the part of the designers.

Wooltex garments are absolutely correct in style, but no extreme effects are presented. The fabrics are unusually beautiful and there is a wide representation of the new sand and putty colorings, with new blues and other desirable dark colorings. The simplicity of the models gives exceptional effectiveness to the superb tailoring that is a characteristic of Wooltex suits and coats.

Note the Garments Illustrated

The group of garments illustrated gives an excellent representation of the new styles that are shown to-morrow.

The collars are a distinct feature of the present season's styles. Rolling collars are the rule, some of them adapted from the coats of military officers; some in quite definite Robespierre style. Some show bands in bright colorings under the roll of the collar. Practically all of the coats have detachable pique or lingerie collars laid over the cloth collars.

Most of the coats have set-in sleeves. The garments are tailored with more seams than last year and show graceful flares at the bottom of the coats, produced by means of the in-set godets at the sides of the coats below the waist-line, which give the extra width and also assure the smart wing-like flare.

Pleats and Belts on Coats

Many of the coats are pleated in soft folds frequently held down by belts or partial belt effect. Some of the coats have slightly raised waist-lines; on others the line is carried far below the waist.

Many charming pocket effects are produced in both coats and skirts. This is a feature seen in the latest suits brought from Paris.

The pockets are useful as well as decorative.

Many Artistic Styles in both Suits and Coats at $25.00 $30.00 $35.00

We cordially invite all women interested in spring apparel and especially those who know the superior qualities of Wooltex garments to visit our store to-morrow and during the coming week to view this charming collection.

The Store That Sells Wooltex

BOY'S EAR WON SUIT FOR HALF A MILLION.

His Peculiar Formation Convinced Court He Was Not a Changeling.

Eugene Slingsby, called Teddy by everybody—the boy with the $500,000 left ear—arrived from England on the steamship New York with his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Morgan Cutler Slingsby. His father, Lieutenant Charles H. Renaud Slingsby, is serving on a British Dreadnought. Mother and son went to San Francisco, where the boy was born.

Teddy is the boy whose parentage was questioned by his father's English relatives in a contest for a share of the estate left by the Rev. Charles Slingsby of Scriven Park, Yorkshire the father of Lieutenant Slingsby. The income from the clergyman's property amounted to $50,000 a year. Under his will $500,000 was to go to the oldest son of his oldest son.

Lieutenant Slingsby had married a San Francisco widow, and their only child (Teddy) was in line for the bulk of his grandfather's estate. Lieutenant Slingsby's younger brother and other relatives, however, asserted Teddy was a changeling; that a son born to Mrs. Slingsby in San Francisco had died at birth and she had replaced him with an infant born to an unfortunate girl in an institution. Mrs. O. H. Blair, a nurse, who had attended Mrs. Slingsby, said this story was true.

Lieutenant Slingsby was in England when his son was born. He hurried back to California to fight his relatives' contention and protect his son. Then, with his wife and Teddy, he went back to England, where proceedings had been started to prevent the boy from sharing in the inheritance. Depositions amounting to a million words were sent to England, and seven witnesses and an attorney went there from San Francisco. When the case came up last December there were more than a hundred witnesses on hand.

On Feb. 3 a judgment was handed down establishing the legitimacy of the boy and his right to the estate. The legal contest was decided on the similarity of the facial features of the boy and his parents. The justice said he was much impressed by the child's extraordinary likeness to Mrs. Slingsby. But, not trusting to his own judgment alone, the justice called in Sir George Frampton, artist, who noticed an odd shape to the boy's left ear. Sir George asked to be introduced to Mrs. Slingsby and immediately observed the same peculiarity in her left ear. On the strength of that Teddy came into his fortune.
